Dreams In Psychotherapy: An Integrative Approach

CLARA HILL, PH.D.

Sunday, January 28, 2007
8:30 A.M. – 4:30 P.M.
Sibley Hospital, Ernst Auditorium
Washington D.C.

14th Annual Conference

Jointly sponsored by
Washington Professionals for the Study of Psychoanalysis
American Academy of Psychoanalysis and Dynamic Psychiatry

The Program

Clara E. Hill, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology at the University of Maryland, is well-known for her theory and research on dream work. She will describe her method of working with dreams, a consensual qualitative method for analyzing therapy transcripts that stays close to the clinical material and is theory-neutral, rather than being dominated by any particular theoretical view. Her method can be used by any clinician and is supported by research. The program will include an interactive research project, and group discussion of a therapy session in which insight resulted from discussion of a dream.

Program Objectives:

At the conclusion of this presentation participants will be able to describe the following: (1) the Hill model for working with dreams; (2) the empirical research on working with dreams in therapy, and (3) how insight develops in dream work.

The Consortium

The Consortium for Psychoanalytic Research represents sixteen Baltimore-Washington area organizations interested in building a bridge between clinicians and clinically relevant research. In recent years, there has been a burgeoning of research on psychoanalytic psychotherapy that enhances understanding of the processes and outcomes that characterize effective treatment. To this end, it sponsors yearly conferences that bring researchers and clinicians together to share data and ideas.
